44-unit senior living facility to break ground

By PEGGY VLEREBOME
Special to the Courier

A Linton, Indiana company hopes to break ground in a couple of weeks for a 44-unit independent and assisted-living facility for senior citizens on Madison's hilltop on East State Road 62.

The facility, Autumn Trace of Indiana, will be directly east of North Madison Christian Church, with King's Daughters' Hospital across the highway and a short distance east.

Completion is expected in the spring of 2020, said Joe Tesmer, vice president of sales and marketing at Autumn Trace Communities, which builds 44-unit assisted-living facilities in rural communities in Indiana. The newest Autumn Trace is in North Vernon. Others are in Linton, Attica, Plymouth and Rensselaer.

Autumn Trace will have three sizes of apartments—studio, one-bedroom and two-bedroom. The monthly rent will start at $2,600 "and go up from there," Tesmer said. There is no buy-in fee and rental is month-to-month, Tesmer said.

All of the facility will be private-pay unless a resident is in a program such as for war veterans or has long-term insurance that covers assisted living, he said. The company website, autumntracecommunities.com discusses various ways people can come up with the money.

If a person rents an independent-living unit and later needs assisted-living, they won't have to change apartments, he said. "Age in place," he said. "You never have to leave your apartment."

Residents who are in assisted-living can receive services as part of their monthly rent such as help dressing and undressing, showering, reminding to take medication and providing incontinence care.

All the units at Autumn Trace facilities are cleaned and the linens are changed weekly. Three meals are served daily. There is staff in the building around the clock. A van is available for shopping and field trips. An activities director plans outings and activities.

There is a 24-hour café. Residents can come and go when they want. There will be an exercise room, a card room and a chapel.

Each of the four corners of the building will have a screened-in porch. Pets are allowed.

Tesmer said Autumn Trace Communities started looking into building in Madison after receiving several telephone calls from residents saying the city needed a facility like Autumn Trace.

A market study was done to see if there was a market and if the community could afford it, said. The study found that "Madison he was in big need for what we do," he said.

Tesmer said he has been receiving calls from potential tenants for almost a year, ever since Autumn Trace went before the Madison Zoning Board of Appeals in August 2018 to get a conditional-use permit.

Regatta - ready, set, go!

Ten contestants — including young women from Madison, Borden, Austin and Carrollton — competed for the title of Miss Madison Regatta 2019 at the Niki Washer Memorial Regatta pageant Monday night at North Madison Christian Church. The winner and new Miss Madison Regatta 2019 is Kennedy Rachelle Easton of Borden, a sophomore at Hanover College. The first runner-up is Makayla Janan Christian of Madison and the second runner-up is Jesse D. Mays of Austin. For more on the pageant and royalty, see Community, Page A8.

The annual Regatta Parade will begin at 7 p.m. Friday at Jefferson and Main streets and turn west on Main until it reaches the end of the route at Cragmont Street.

Kim Washer, chair of the event, said the parade probably will last 60-90 minutes. There are 110 entries this year.

The grand marshals this year are a former Madison High School basketball standout and a King's Daughters' Health emergency room physician.

Danny Gibson graduated in 2002 from MCHS and played college basketball before moving on to a 13-year career as a professional basketball player in the international ranks. He is the Grand Marshal.

Dr. Mark Charpentier, an emergency medicine physician at King's Daughters' Health in Madison where he serves as the medical director of the emergency department, is the Community Grand Marshal, a new role for the 2019 parade.

Among others expected in the parade in addition to the high school bands, drill teams, balloons, law enforcement officers, vintage cars and other favorites are Fran and Edward Muncey, the wife and son of the late Bill Muncey and Chip Hanauer. Bill Muncey and Hanauer are two of the greatest unlimited hydroplane drivers of all time with Muncey ranking second in career wins with 62 and Hanauer third with 61.

DUI charges against golf cart driver

Courier Staff Report

A Madison man has been arrested for driving under the influence after officers stopped his golf cart speeding through a stop sign late Saturday night in downtown Madison.

Charles Bersch, 68, 204 St. Michaels Ave., was placed under arrest after results of a field sobriety test conducted by Patrolman Trent Smith and a portable breath test conducted by Senior Patrolman Seth Melton indicated that Bersch was above the legal blood alcohol limit.

Smith and Melton originally stopped Bersch after observing his golf cart disregard the stop sign at the intersection of West and Fifth streets while traveling east at a high rate of speed at about 11:43 p.m.

According to a probable cause affidavit filed in Jefferson Superior Court, when Bersch was stopped at the corner of Mulberry and Fifth streets, officers noticed that he was unsteady on his feet when he exited the golf cart, his speech was slurred and he smelled of alcohol. The affidavit said Bersch admitted to police that he had been drinking earlier in the day and had used marijuana.

During a search of Bersch and the golf cart, police confiscated a "one hitter" of marijuana from his pocket and placed Bersch under arrest. Bersch was taken to King's Daughters' Hospital for a blood draw then and to the Jefferson County Jail.

The arrest is not the first in Madison for operating a golf cart under the influence. Madison police made a similar arrest in September of 2013 in downtown Madison.

According to Madison Police Chief Jeremey Perkins, golf cart operators must observe the same traffic laws as operator's of other vehicles, and, in some cases face even more restrictions.

Based on an ordinance adopted by the city in 2009, carts operating on city streets must be registered with the city and have a registration sticker attached. The operator or owner must show proof of insurance and operators must be over the age of 16 and hold a driver's license.

Meet 'someday famous' Emily Grace Holland

By CHARLIE ROHLFING

Emily Grace Holland doesn't play an instrument. She's not a singer. She's never been in a band. But someday she may have a bigger impact on the national music scene than any of Madison's native sons or daughters.

You see, Emily Holland is completely obsessed with the music business — live festivals and concerts in particular. And even though she just graduated from Ball State, she's already immersed herself in every aspect of the industry. She's going places in this world, mark my words.

"Live music is my passion," Emily says. "Everything I've done leading up to this point in my life, my college career, everything, is about achieving my goal. I want to be high up in one of the big music promotion organizations, like Live Nation, AEG or Promotion West. Or I want to work directly for one of the festivals, like Bonnaroo."

Here's what you need to know about Emily, and why I think she will achieve her dreams. She moved to Madison in the eighth grade when her dad got a job at Rotary Lift. And she grew very tall. And she got strong and athletic. And Madison's volleyball coach Jeff Lawson molded her natural abilities and helped her earn a scholarship to Ball State University.

But make no mistake. Tall and athletic does not equate to automatic success in NCAA Division I sports. To play four years and excel at the highest collegiate level takes fierce determination and unwavering discipline. Emily Grace Holland is used to competing, she knows how to win, and she does not quit. If she says she's going to do something, I would not bet against her.

"This summer I'm working for Music For All, a national non-profit based in Indy that uses music experiences to impact and improve young lives. I'm in the Advancement department, doing fundraising and sponsorships. I'm also an intern at Bonnaroo this summer with the VIP Platinum program. Oh, and I do guest services at White River State Park whenever they have concerts.

EMILY GRACE HOLLAND

"I literally don't have a free day, weekends included, until the end of July. Any free days I have I go to as many festivals and concerts as I can with my friends. I'm seeing Public The Band, Walk the Moon and Vance Joy this summer. But my all-time favorite is Rainbow Kitten Surprise. You should check them out."

I did in fact check out Rainbow Kitten Surprise on You Tube, and they are, in fact, quite awesome.

But getting back to Emily, you can probably start to see what I'm talking about. She knows exactly what she wants to do, she knows how to achieve it, and she's willing to put in the work to make it happen. Oh, and then there's the Emmy award.

"I was a telecommunications major at Ball State, with a business minor. I did a lot of filmmaking and video production. My senior year I was the producer on a team that did a documentary on Garfield cartoonist Jim Davis, and we were nominated for a regional Emmy." As I was writing this article I heard from Emily and her film did indeed win. One more "W" in Emily's column.

Someday in the not too distant future, when you're reading about the movers and shakers of the music biz, don't be surprised if you read the name Emily Grace Holland. And remember you read it here first in The Madison Courier.

'The Story of Jim Davis'

Madison's Holland producer of regional Emmy progam

By MARK CAMPBELL
Courier staff writer

When Madison's Emily Holland decided to attend Ball State University in the fall of 2014 about the only thing she knew for sure was that she wanted to play college volleyball and maybe major in either chemistry or telecommunications.

Four years after accepting an athletic scholarship to the Cardinals' volleyball program, Holland has graduated Summa Cum Laude with a degree in telecommunciations, a concentration in video production and a minor in business and is plotting a career path that had already found more success that most.

Holland plans to work in the entertainment industry — more specifically music production and coordination — and she already has a regional Emmy to her credit as producer of a project involving several of her classmates and legendary cartoonist and Ball State alumnus Jim Davis that they produced for WIPB, Muncie's local PBS affiliate.

The award, presented earlier this month in Cleveland at the 50th Annual Emmy Awards gala presented by the national Academy of Television Arts and Sciences Lower Great Lakes Chapter, recognized the work of Holland and her fellow students for "The Story of Jim Davis" in the Nostalgia Program-Program/Special/Series category. Holland was the producer, classmate Ryan Jay Shank directed and Jay Fields served as assistant producer.

The film looks at the life and career of 73-year-old Davis from his youth on the family farm in Fairmount when he first started drawing, to his years at Ball State when his art started taking on a style of its own, to his time working with cartoonist Tom Ryan on "Tumbleweeds." It details how he initially pursued the cartoon "Gnorm Gnat" to later developing the Garfield character that became the most popular cartoon in the world, branching out into books, television, movies, merchandising and the licensing company Paws Inc.

"It was absolutely wild to even be nominated. Once we saw the final product, we were all so proud of it and knew it was something we wanted to submit for awards," Holland said. "Entering 'The Story of Jim Davis' into the Lower Great Lakes Chapter NATAS cost money. And as college students, we had to decide if we were willing to spend that much knowing it might not even get nominated. We were so proud of it though that we took a leap of faith and it ended up working out. When it got nominated it felt so good because it recognized all of our hard work."

The nomination was just the beginning. After all the projects were judged, the 25-minute program on the 40th anniversary of Davis creating Garfield, actually won. Shank and Fields were both on hand for the awards presentation but Holland was in rural Tennessee where she was serving an externship at the 2019 Bonnaroo Music and Arts Festival.

"Ryan Shank and Jay Fields were texting me updates. I was sitting alone at the information booth at Bonnaroo and I got a Facetime from them. They told me that the winner was about to be announced for the Nostalgia Program category. Ryan said he would hang up if we won," Holland recalled. "So, I got to hear them announce that the winner of the Nostalgia Program was "The Story of Jim Davis." I was by myself in the middle of nowhere in Tennessee and I was jumping and cheering like a crazy person. Then Ryan immediately hung up. It was a magical moment."

As producer, Holland said he role on the film was "to take all of the creative desires of the director and make them happen logistically" which requires "a lot of management and logistics and includes tasks such as scheduling, budgeting, communicating."

Those are all skills that should come in handy as Holland hopes to move toward a career in the music industry managing artists or events. Holland said her classes at Ball State helped her to develop those skills through hands-on projects.

"At Ball State we have immersive learning. Immersive learning is putting students into real life situations working with real clients. This documentary was a part of an immersive learning class," Holland said. "WIPB came to one of my professors, Chris Flook, and asked him if he could get Ball State telecommunications students to produce original content for their station. So, Chris set up crews and we had a semester to complete either a short film or documentary.

"My first priority was to schedule and set up interviews. When you work on a documentary, you want to film the interviews before the b-roll most of the time because it is not scripted, so you have to wait to see what people will say before getting visuals. We finished those in February. Then we worked on getting b-roll. Kim Campbell-Beasley was our main contact at Paws Inc. and helped me so much with the scheduling process. Finally, we handed off all of our footage to our post production crew towards the end of March. It premiered on WIPB on May 4 , 2018. This class was much different than a normal class. This was something you had to work around the clock on. It was something that you had to fully commit to. I am so grateful that Chris Flook has continuously allowed me to work around my volleyball schedule."

It's the kind of experience that should prepare Holland to meet her career goals and having an Emmy on her resume could open some doors, too.

"I believe working on a regional Emmy-winning documentary will help people take us (the whole crew) seriously," said Holland. "When people hear about a student film, they don't necessarily think of good quality work. However, this recognizes how hard we all worked and how talented and professional the entire documentary crew truly is."

Holland said working on the program required a lot of long hours but the project went very smooth. Although it was her first film as producer, she had previously worked as assistant producer on the film "From Normal to Extraordinary: Ball State's First Century" that was shown at the Heartland Film Festival in Indianapolis in October of 2018.

"This is the first Emmy project I have worked on. What is crazy though is that this was the smoothest filming process out of any of the films I worked on. Surprisingly, nothing went wrong," Holland noted. "Jim Davis and everyone at Paws Inc. were so nice and genuinely helped out as much as they could. Kim Campbell-Beasley specifically was a huge help. She was our main contact at Paws ... Plus, our entire crew was so professional and talented. Every single one of them is great at what they do and we had a great bond. I hope I can work with them again someday!"

With a degree in hand — and perhaps more importantly a lot of real world experience on her resume — Holland will now start her search for a job in an industry she already loves and hopes to make as a career.

"Now that I have graduated from Ball State, I am hoping to find a job working in the live music industry. Music is my true passion," Holland, who seems to attend a live concert almost weekly, said. "During my time at Ball State, I have always been in the producer role for films. This role involves management and logistics. That is why I am hoping to take the skills I have learned working on films and translate it over into event production and coordination in the live music industry."

That transition is already taking place.

"This current summer I have been trying to gain as much experience in this industry as I can. I have a full-time internship at Music for All in Indianapolis in the advancement department," Holland noted. "Music for All is a nonprofit organization that provides music education opportunities for students all across the nation. In the advancement department, I work mainly with sponsorships, grants, donors and scholarships.

"I also just finished a week-long externship at Bonnaroo Music and Arts festival. I was a VIP/Platinum extern, so I got to set up and help run the VIP and Platinum areas during the festival," she said. "Throughout the week I got to hear from some big speakers such as one of the founders of the festival itself, and it was such a great opportunity.

"Finally, I am working as a guest services representative at the Farm Bureau Insurance Lawn at White River State Park which is a Live Nation venue in Indianapolis," Holland added. "I have learned so much and met so many people this summer, and can't wait to see what opportunity presents itself next!"

Holland is active on Twitter, often noting the concerts she's attending, the bands that she likes or thinks are up and coming.

You can follow her on Twitter at @Emily_Holland_ . You can also watch the Emmy winning documentary "The Story of Jim Davis" on YouTube at www.youtube.com/watch?v=8Sx-qcOh9q5U .

Clark Co. Judge charged in fight ready for legal process

Indiana

INDIANAPOLIS — A Clark County judge who faces felony battery charges stemming from a May fight outside a fast-food restaurant in which he and another judge were shot and wounded is "prepared to proceed through the legal process." The Courier-Journal reported that lawyer Larry Wilder issued a statement on behalf of Clark County Judge Andrew Adams in response to the grand jury indictments against Adams and two others in the confrontation outside of a White Castle in Indianapolis. Adams and another Clark County judge who wasn't indicted were wounded while in Indianapolis for a work-related conference. The statement said Adams continues to work toward "full physical recovery." Adams and another man were charged with felony battery and other misdemeanors. The alleged gunman also was charged.

Mall damaged by tornado set to re-open

RICHMOND — A shopping mall damaged by a June tornado is to re-open less than three weeks after that storm. The June 15 tornado swept Richmond Mall with winds of up to 85 mph, damaging the 391,000-square-foot mall and many of its stores. But the Palladium-Item reported that mall's owner, Georgia-based Hull Property Group, said the mall's interior and many of those stores were to re-open Tuesday, although repairs continue on some stores. A statement by the company credits the City of Richmond and "countless others" for helping the mall "to reopen so quickly after such a powerful storm." The mall's JC Penney and Office Max stores were most heavily damaged by the tornado. They remain closed with ongoing repair work.

Purdue OKs extra seating for speech

WEST LAFAYETTE — Tickets for a speech by Apollo 11 flight director Gene Kranz vanished so fast Purdue University has opened up overflow seating for the event. Kranz is scheduled to speak at Purdue's Stewart Center on July 18, two days before the 50th anniversary of the Apollo 11 moon landing where Purdue alumnus Neil Armstrong became the first human to walk on the moon. But the Journal & Courier reports the free tickets to Kranz's presentation disappeared in less than a day, prompting Purdue officials to arrange overflow seating for those who couldn't get a ticket. Kranz's talk, "Go or No-Go: The Untold Story of the Apollo 11 Moon Landing," will be livestreamed to one room at Purdue's Wetherill Laboratory of Chemistry and another room at the Wilmeth Active Learning Center.

STATE BRIEFS

Camden couple charged with animal cruelty

DELPHI — A Carroll County couple is facing animal cruelty charges after authorities say three dozen dogs were found living in "deplorable" conditions at their rural property. James and Shannon Ballard were charged June 20 with nine counts each of animal cruelty following an investigation by the Carroll County Sheriff's Office. Authorities received an animal cruelty complaint in May about numerous dogs and other animals living at the couple's Camden residence. The Pharos-Tribune reported 36 dogs were later removed from the Ballards' property and placed in foster homes or shelters after being found in "deplorable" conditions without food, water and shelter. Four cats and 10 chickens were also removed. The couple is scheduled for a Sept. 18 bench trial.

Kentucky

Campaign launched to promote markets

FRANKFORT — Farmers markets across Kentucky are getting a promotional boost from a summer advertising campaign by the state's agricultural marketing program. State Agriculture Commissioner Ryan Quarles said Kentucky has more than 165 farmers markets in 113 counties. He said it shows the state's local food movement is thriving. Quarles said farmers markets allow Kentuckians to get healthy, fresh food while supporting local farmers. Agriculture officials say the ad campaign includes video and radio spots as well as limited TV and print advertising. The marketing plan also includes ads on social media. They say the campaign will run for nine weeks, urging consumers to support registered Kentucky Proud farmers markets. Kentucky Proud is the state's official agricultural marketing program.

Ex-judge accused of selling drugs

BARBOURVILLE — A former magistrate is accused of illegally selling pain pills during his unsuccessful re-election campaign last year. The Lexington Herald-Leader reported former Knox County magistrate Jerry "Rabbit" Cox has been indicted on charges of illegally distributing hydrocodone or oxycodone in March and April 2018. Cox is a former coal miner who runs a used-car lot and was previously charged with misappropriating county property. He was accused of having county workers install drainage tiles or spread gravel on private property, a common way for local officials to garner votes. He was acquitted in 2017. His lawyer argued there was no testimony that Cox had asked for votes in return for the gravel. It's unclear if Cox has been taken into custody.

Dillsboro man charged in child pornography case

Case involves South Dearborn Middle School coach, female student

Courier Staff Report

A Dillsboro man is facing felony charges of possession and attempted possession of child pornography after an investigation by Indiana State Police Detectives with the Indiana Crimes Against Children Unit.

Karl Edward Hoffrogge, 20, of Dillsboro, a former wrestler and football player at Milan High School, was an assistant wrestling coach at South Dearborn Middle School in Aurora where the girl was a student.

Hoffrogge turned himself in at the Dearborn County Law Enforcement Center Friday, June 28, after a warrant was issued for his arrest on charges of possession of child pornography.

The charges stem from an investigation that began in May 2019 when Indiana State Police were contacted after a cyber tip was provided to the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children.

During the investigation, detectives determined that Hoffrogge allegedly requested and received nude pictures from the juvenile female student through a social media site in January and February 2019.

At the conclusion of the investigation, the case was presented to the Dearborn County Prosecutor's Office, resulting in a warrant being issued for Hoffrogge's arrest on one count of possession of child pornography and two counts of attempted possession of child pornography, all Class 6 felonies.

Hoffrogge was incarcerated pending his initial appearance in the Dearborn County Circuit Court.

Heart attack causes fatal Bedford crash

Courier Staff Report

A Bedford, Kentucky, man who was found dead after his Jeep crashed on U.S. 42 Saturday in Bedford apparently died of natural causes.

Trimble County Coroner Frederica Ransdell Congleton has ruled that Allan D. Stark, 76, of Bedford, Kentucky, most likely died of a heart attack, causing him to lose control of his vehicle.

Kentucky State Police also investigated the incident which took place at 11:46 a.m. Saturday, June 29 about 0.2 miles east of Bedford. Stark was traveling east on U.S. 42 East and went off the right side of the roadway.

He was dead in the vehicle when authorities arrived at the scene.

Stark was not wearing a seat belt but his injuries were not severe enough to cause death which contributed to the death by natural causes, Congleton said.

Kicking rude in-laws out

Annie Lane

Dear Annie: My in-laws who live across the country have basically tricked us into agreeing to host them for almost a month. Here is how it happened:

My father-in-law (who almost never travels, unless it's for his benefit) asked to stay with us so that he and his wife could spend time with family. We were under the impression that this would be for a weekend.

We extended our offer to host them. Now, I love these people. But they are, hmm, "difficult." Whether it's complaining about our home, furniture, (pick anything and insert it here) or trying to engage us in discussions about politics (as they have opposing views) and being argumentative (which the husband does routinely) I don't know how we will survive them.

It wasn't until AFTER my spouse agreed emphatically to have them was it disclosed for how long this visit would be.

These people are more than able to afford to pay for lodgings. But my father-in-law is married to his money, and probably wouldn't come if he had to pay for a motel.

We have had a tenuous relationship at times over the years. We have made all the efforts to try to maintain some semblance of a good relationship, as they don't budge. So my spouse and I are stuck.

If we attempt to ask them to make other arrangements, even for a short time, they will never speak to us again. And that is a definite reality. And they are of advancing age, and this may likely be the last time we ever see them.

I am beside myself. I'm semi-retired; my spouse works and gets to leave every day, and I'm the one stuck with these people. And they don't really like me, and have never been shy about saying so.

Oh, Annie. We can't un-invite these people. If we try to modify any of this, it will create Armageddon within the family. Unfortunately they love drama, and have created so much to the divide between us over the years.

I need advice from your readership on how to get through this month with them. My home isn't very big, though I do have the room for them, but walking on eggshells and trying to deflect or ignore all the drama and negativity is going to be extremely difficult. Add to the fact of just having them in our space for so long, well, neither my spouse nor I are sleeping and are full of anxiety over this.

The visit is in the fall, so we do have time to prepare. But we need some coping advice.

Please, we welcome concrete suggestions from others who've had to go through similar situations. — Grinding My Teeth

Dear Grinding My Teeth: Wow, your letter sounds exhausting. When you marry a partner, it is always ideal to have a nice, civil relationship with their family. Your father-in-law's difficult personality is posing quite a challenge.

Have your spouse set rules from the beginning. For instance, no discussing sensitive issues, such as politics, religion, sex or money. And no complaining. Just try to enjoy each other's company as much as you can.

Because they love drama, and you want to avoid it, setting the rules ahead of time is a good way to maintain control.

Benjamin Franklin once said, "Fish and visitors stink after three days."

And as you asked our readers if they have suggestions based upon their own experiences, I welcome any and all suggestions.

"Ask Me Anything: A Year of Advice From Dear Annie" is out now! PETS OF THE WEEK

NICOLE

Nicole is a unique, sleek black cat who would be a great house pet. She does well with cats and dogs, but a cat tree or a place for her to hide is ideal since she is used to being around a few calm dogs. Nicole was found with DJ and Clara. Dj is also waiting for his forever home. Nicole is spayed and up-to-date on her rabies vaccination, which makes her $45 total to adopt.

The Madison-Jefferson County Animal Shelter currently has 8 dogs or puppies, and 33 cats or kittens available. Pictures of additional pets waiting for adoption can be viewed at www.sisaveapet.com

Normal shelter hours are Monday, Thursday and Friday from noon to 5 p.m., Wednesday from 1 p.m. to 7 p.m., Saturday from noon to 4 p.m., and Sunday from noon to 3 p.m. It is closed Tuesday. The shelter number is (812) 273-1788 and the email is animal.shelter39@jefferson-county.in.gov

The shelter also accepts aluminum and steel cans, which are recycled and the proceeds put toward the medical fund. The shelter asks that aluminum and steel donations be separated. Cans can be dropped off at anytime in a bin located on the east side of the shelter.

Those with missing pets can stop by the shelter, call or email a complete description of the pet, when and where it was last seen, the owner's name and contact information, and a picture of the pet. Pets are held for three days before they are made available for adoption.

It's Gold Cup Week

Madison Regatta ready for its moment to shine

By DAVID CAMPBELL
Courier Staff Writer
dcampbell@madisoncourier.com

In the summer of 1971, Jim McCormick made hydroplane history when he steered the upstart Miss Madison to an improbable win in the APBA Gold Cup on the team's home course. Now, 48 years later, Jimmy Shane will try to duplicate that same feat.

Shane comes into this weekend's Madison Regatta not only as the fan favorite, but the sentimental favorite as well as the city hosts the oldest trophy in motorsports for the first time since 1980.

As driver of the U-6 Miss HomeStreet/Miss Madison — and McCormick's spiritual successor — Shane knows how important it is to claim the Cup for his city and the fans that also double as the team's owners.

"It's going to be very emotional. The last time a driver named 'Jim' drove the Miss Madison in the Gold Cup in Madison, he won, so I have some big shoes to fill," Shane said with a smile. "It's such an honor to drive for that city, this boat and this team, and I'm just a very fortunate person to be a member of the Madison community."

Shane is no stranger to Gold Cup victories. In his first year with the team in 2014, Shane steered the Miss Madison — then sponsored by Oberto Beef Jerky — to victory in Detroit and duplicated the feat a year later. He picked up a third Gold Cup win in 2017 with the HomeStreet/Miss Madison making him just the 12th driver in the 116-year history of the Cup to win it at least three times.

Along with McCormick's win in 1971, the Miss Madison Racing Team has four wins in the Gold Cup in total and would love nothing better than to claim a fifth with the entire city on hand to watch.

GPW roaring into the Regatta

By DAVID CAMPBELL
Courier Staff Writer
dcampbell@madisoncourier.com

The roar of the Grand Prix World automotive-powered boats will be back in Madison this weekend with the running of the North American Championship for a fourth-straight year.

The series, which resembles the larger Unlimiteds in plenty of ways, kicked off its season last weekend at Guntersville Lake in Alabama where Greg Hopp picked up the win in the GP-15 Happy Go Lucky Racing.

Hopp, as well as every boat that raced in Guntersville, will be in Madison this weekend as well as a few more according the GPW Chairman Sam Cole.

"We could have anywhere between six and nine boats, depending upon what happens (at Guntersville)," Cole said on Sunday. "Our goal is to come to Madison and put on a great race."

Many of the regulars on the GPW circuit have started making names for themselves to fans in Madison thanks to their repeated visits to the city.

Jamie Nilsen won last year's North American Championship in Madison, steering the Scott Pierce-owned GP-55 Cabo Marine to victory over a seven-boat field in the final. Nilsen's boat battled mechanical woes throughout the weekend in Guntersville.

Hopp, who owns two GPW boats along with his father Jerry, is arguably the best-known of the series' drivers. Greg Hopp has driven Unlimited hydroplanes for the past 20 years and has been a dominant force on the GP circuit.

Ed Preston comes into the race as the defending national champion aboard the GP-20 Blown Income Racing. Preston finished second in Guntersville.

"I don't think the teams get a better reception anywhere than when they go to Madison. The highlight of their year is getting to take the boats down Main Street for the parade," Cole said. "It should be a great race. Dennis Johnson's boat has been on the Canadian tour for the past

US men beat Curacao to reach semis

By DAVE ZEITLIN
Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — Christian Pulisic and the United States are headed to the CONCACAF Gold Cup semifinals after an underwhelming performance against Curacao.

The U.S. was outplayed during the second half by the world's 79th-ranked national team but managed to advance with a 1-0 win Sunday night behind Weston McKennie's goal in the 25th minute.

The defending champion U.S. extended its Gold Cup winning streak to nine and will play Jamaica on Wednesday at Nashville, Tennessee, in the second semifinal, a night after Mexico faces Haiti at Glendale, Arizona. The U.S. reached the semifinals for the 10th straight Gold Cup and 14th in 15 overall.

"When you get to the knockout stages, everyone wants to move on to the next round and they're giving absolutely everything," Pulisic said. "Curacao 100 percent wanted that — you could see that in the way they played."

Pulisic, the Americans' star midfielder, captained the U.S. for the second time and fed fellow 20-year-old McKennie for the goal. Pulisic cut in from a flank and crossed, and McKennie headed in the ball from 4 yards for his second goal in 12 international appearances.

"That's one of my strengths, running into the box late," McKennie said. "I always tell him to look for me. He knows to look for me. That's a little something we work on together."

Playing near his hometown of Hershey, Pulisic shot just wide in the second minute and was denied in the fourth when goalkeeper Eloy Room, while falling to his left, reached to his right to tip his shot over the crossbar.

"I wanted to lead the team from the start," Pulisic said. "In the end, we needed to finish more chances to make it much easier on ourselves."

Curacao had 60 percent possession in the second half and outshot the U.S. 15-10 overall. American goalkeeper Zack Steffen, a native of suburban Philadelphia, made a leaping save on Leandro Bacuna in the 84th minute.

The 30th-ranked Americans have outscored opponents 12-0 in the tournament, the championship of North and Central America and the Caribbean, and have held opponents scoreless for 405 minutes overall.

Gregg Berhalter, hired as U.S. coach in December, said it was a tactical decision to fall back and not press in the second half, which allowed Curacao to control possession.

"When you look at these quarterfinal matches, they're all tight matches," Berhalter told reporters. "You guys wanted us to go out there and beat them 5-0. But we knew it was going to be a difficult game."

This will be the third straight Gold Cup in which the U.S. and Jamaica meet in the knockout stage. The Reggae Boyz upset the U.S. in the 2015 semifinals, and the Americans defeated Jamaica in the 2017 final.

Berhalter returned to the same starting lineup he used for the initial group stage matches against Guyana and then Trinidad and Tobago. With the U.S. assured of advancing, Berhalter changed all 11 starters against Panama for the group stage finale.

Berhalter has had nine different captains in 10 games. Pulisic's only previous game as captain was in a 1-0 exhibition defeat to Italy last Nov. 20 under interim coach Dave Sarachan.

"It was something that he readily accepted," Berhalter said. "He's a guy that despite getting fatigued in the game, he didn't stop working."

Brad Calipari to transfer to Detroit

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Kentucky guard Brad Calipari says on his verified Twitter account that he will transfer to Detroit Mercy where he will play for former Indiana head coach Mike Davis.

The 6-foot son of Wildcats coach John Calipari will have two seasons of eligibility remaining and can play immediately as a graduate transfer. Calipari thanked many in a video posted Monday and says he had "the privilege of putting on that Kentucky jersey the past three years." But he added that playing at Detroit Mercy provides the best opportunity to fulfill his dream of making a "major" on-court impact at the collegiate level.

Calipari played in 27 games his first two seasons at Kentucky before redshirting in 2018-19. He was a two-time Southeastern Conference Academic Honor Roll member and graduated in May with a communications degree.

Pacers sign former Card Brian Bowen

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Former Louisville and South Carolina player Brian Bowen II, caught up in the college basketball corruption scandal, has signed a two-way contract with the Indiana Pacers.

The Pacers announced the move Monday. Bowen played professionally in Australia during the 2018-19 for the Sydney Kings. He averaged 6.3 points and 3.2 rebounds in 30 games played.

Bowen enrolled at Louisville in the fall of 2017, but never played a game. He transferred to South Carolina for the spring semester and left in May when it became apparent the NCAA would keep him from playing for longer than Bowen hoped.

The scandal included allegations that Bowen's father was given $100,000 to have his son play for Louisville. The younger Bowen has denied any wrongdoing and recently sued Adidas and several associates caught up in the scandal. The suit also names James Gatto, Merl Code, Christian Dawkins, Munish Sood, Thomas Gassnola and Christopher Rivers. Gatto, Code and Dawkins were found guilty last month in a federal trial.

The Pacers also signed forward JaKeenan Gant and guard C.J. Wilcox to contracts.

BRIDGE

YOU CAN MISLEAD DURING THE AUCTION

I hope all of my American readers have a very happy Independence Day.

Today, let's look at a very clever auction by Richard Freeman, a three-time world champion who died in 2009. With that West hand, what would you do after partner opens one heart, and the next player passes?

The deal occurred during the 2005 Bermuda Bowl World Team Championship.

At the first table, West responded three hearts, which was pre-emptive. Eric Rodwell (North) made a takeout double, East raised to four hearts, and Jeff Meckstroth (South) bid four spades.

East found the winning defense. He won the first trick with his heart queen and shifted to a club to dummy's jack. South played a spade to his jack, ruffed his last heart and led the spade queen. East won with his ace, cashed the diamond ace and played another club to strand declarer in the dummy. South took dummy's club winners, then tried to cash the diamond king, but East ruffed to defeat the contract.

At the other table, Freeman (West) responded with a forcing one no-trump! North made a takeout double, Nick Nickell (East) redoubled to show a strong hand, and South advanced with two spades. Now Freeman passed! He knew that his partner would act again given his redouble. East rebid two no-trump, South competed with three spades, and finally, kicking and screaming, Freeman bid four hearts. Since his opponents had shown their values, this was passed out.

Nickell won the trump lead, drew a second round and conceded one spade and two clubs.

Minus 50 and plus 420 gave the United States 9 international match points.

four or five years and Mario Maraldo raced up there last year. You look at other boats, Greg Hopp is running well, Larry Linn's boat is running well, Scott Pierce's boat is running well. All of those top guys should be coming."

For Cole, putting on a good race has always been the circuit's main goal. While the series has shown some growth in recent years, it continues to compete with the Hydroplane Racing League, a rival grand prix series based in Canada that has staked out a notch in the eastern United States.

"We wanted to give Madison a great show and by having it as the North American Championship, we were hoping that we could induce some of those Canadians to come down and show us who's best," Cole said with a smile. "We're looking forward to it. We're going to have a great season."

The GPW class will be on the water all three days this weekend, starting with testing Friday — a free day for fans — before racing starts Saturday. There will be three sets of heats on Saturday and two more on Sunday with the final scheduled for 2:30 p.m.

"This is huge for the town of Madison, Indiana. You get one shot at the Gold Cup every year and there has only been 105 chances to win the Gold Cup in the history of it," Shane said. "I'm honored to be able to race again for it and hopefully we can come out on top."

Shane comes into the Madison race riding a full wave of momentum after a dominating win in the season opener in Guntersville Lake in Alabama last weekend. Shane won three of the four preliminary heats he was in and was never challenged in the final heat as he rolled to his 18th career win on the circuit.

But Shane's chances at Madison were greatly reduced with the announcement late last week that Andrew Tate and the U-1 Jones Racing Team will be making the trek to the Ohio Valley ofr its season opener.

Tate won five of the six races on the H1 Unlimited circuit last year, including his own first APBA Gold in his hometown of Detroit. Tate and the team skipped last weekend's race in Guntersville, but will be in Madison to defend their Cup.

"That will just make it more exciting for the fans," Shane said of Tate's participation.

The other five boats that made the trip to Guntersville will also be in Madison for a total of seven that will vie for the Cup.

J. Michael Kelly, who won his first Gold Cup in 2016, finished second to Shane at Guntersville in the U-12 Graham Trucking and comes into the race second in the National High Points. Kelly and his team skipped every race but the Washington State races a year ago so he's thrilled to be returning east.

"I watched the races last year from home and it made it tough being there knowing that I would have at least made it tougher on the other guys," Kelly said. "But sometimes as a team you have to sit out and do things and build for the future and that's what we were doing."

Dustin Echols finished fourth in the final heat at Guntersville aboard the U-440 Bucket List Racing but comes in third in the points after a stellar weekend. Bert Henderson in the U-7 Spirit of Detroit, Corey Peabody in the U-98 Graham Trucking and Tom Thompson in the U-11 J&D's round out the field.

Action for this weekend's Madison Regatta and APBA Gold Cup will begin on Friday with a full day of racing that will be free for fans. The H1 boats, the Grand Prix World series, a collection of vintage boats and radio-controlled boats will all test on the Ohio River with H1 qualifying set for 2-4 p.m.

Racing begins on Saturday with two sets of heats for the APBA Gold Cup and three for the GPW North American Championship. More racing will follow on Sunday with the APBA Gold Cup final scheduled for 3 p.m.
